RCF LA BOULIE GOLF CLUB

FRANCE / 24-26 JULY

2025

MESSAGE FROM THE EGA PRESIDENT

The European Golf Association is grateful to the French Golf Federation and to Racing Club de France La Boulie for hosting the 2025 European Young Masters.

The event provides an early opportunity for European golfers to test their skills against each other to make friendships which can last a lifetime.

From my experience, the European Young Masters continues to be one of the most inspiring championship to attend as it gives you the opportunity to watch junior elite amateur golfers start their route to success.

I am sure that the friendliest atmosphere will prevail, and I wish every competitor a most happy event.

Caroline HUYSKES
President of the European Golf Association

MESSAGE FROM THE FFGOLF PRESIDENT

The French Golf Federation is proud to welcome the European Young Masters 2025 at La Boulie Golf Club.

I extend a warm welcome to all teams and officials, with the hope that this event will be an enjoyable and successful experience for everyone involved.

The story of La Boulie begins in 1901 with the construction of the first golf course in Paris. As early as 1906, La Boulie hosted the first French Open, won by the renowned club professional Arnaud Massy. Among the many prestigious tournaments that Le Golf de la Boulie later hosted, we remember the 1994 World Amateur Team Championships, which included the participation of a young Tiger Woods at the Eisenhower Trophy.

I am confident that players, staff, and families will appreciate their time close to the renowned city of Versailles.

As always, I know that the Club Committee, members, and the team from the French Golf Federation will go above and beyond to ensure a memorable tournament for all competitors.

My gratitude goes to the European Golf Association for their trust in us.

Wishing everyone a truly unforgettable team championship.

Pascal GRIZOT
President of the French Golf Federation

MESSAGE FROM RCF LA BOULIE GOLF CLUB PRESIDENT

The Racing Club de France la Boulie golf club, its team, members and partners are delighted and honoured to be hosting the European Young Masters from 24 to 26 July 2025.

La Boulie is a renowned place to play where our members rub shoulders with professional players trained at the club, including Antoine Rozner (PGA Tour), Frédéric Lacroix and David Ravetto (DP World Tour).

For all of us, and as Pascal Grizot, President of the French Golf Federation, points out, this event is part of a long tradition of organising international competitions since 1906, including 20 French Opens and the World Amateur Championship.

The EYM teams will be following in the footsteps of some of the world's greatest players, including Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Severiano Ballesteros, Nick Faldo and Tiger Woods.

Just 2 km from the Chateau de Versailles, our exceptional 106-hectare site boasts two 18-hole courses, a 9-hole course, a new-generation driving range equipped with Trackman Range technology, 2 large putting greens and an approach zone.

Hospitality areas will be dedicated to the teams so that they can prepare to play at their best. Our catering teams will also be on hand to offer you high-quality, tasty food.

We are committed to welcoming you in the best possible conditions, in a festive atmosphere full of surprises.

I would like to sincerely thank the European Golf Association for choosing our club and the French Golf Federation for supporting our bid.

We look forward to welcoming you and wish you a great championship.

Arnaud BONHOMME

CLUB HISTORY

La Boulie, one of the most prestigious golf clubs in France, was founded in 1901 by Pierre Deschamps and his associates under the name Société du Golf de Paris. Their goal was to create a golf course near Paris, the first in the capital. The course was designed by Scottish architect Willie Park Junior, and an Anglo-Norman style clubhouse was inaugurated in 1904.

The history of La Boulie can be divided into two main periods. The first, from 1901 to 1951, is marked by significant events such as the first French Open in 1906, won by Arnaud Massy. In 1911, a 9-hole course was added to accommodate the growing number of members. In 1913, the club hosted a historic match between the best French and American golfers, with France emerging victorious. During the World Wars, the site underwent several changes: it was converted into a military hospital during World War I, occupied by the Germans during World War II, and turned into allotment gardens after the war. In 1951, the majority of the shares were sold.

The second period began in 1951, when the Racing Club de France took control of the club. Pierre Prieur, a passionate golfer, oversaw its restoration, and in 1952, the La Vallée course reopened after 15 months of renovation under the direction of landscaper Jacques Roussel. The club hosted several major international events, including nine editions of the French Open, the 1963 Golf World Cup, and numerous other competitions. In 1968, a second course, La Forêt, was opened, bringing the total number of holes to 45.

Today, La Boulie is an iconic venue in French golf, hosting prestigious tournaments and boasting a rich history that has spanned several eras.

COURSE

La Vallée – 1901

La Vallée is the first golf course built in the Paris region, established in 1901. Its winding and hilly layout, which was innovative for its time, was designed by Scottish architect Willie Park Jr, a two-time winner of The Open Championship and one of the most renowned golf course architects of the early 20th century. The course hosted the first French Open in 1906, won by the club's professional, Arnaud Massy. Devastated during World War II, it was rebuilt in 1951 according to its original design, with some necessary modifications and adjustments after the passage of German tanks. La Vallée has been the venue for 19 editions of the French Open, a World Cup in 1963, and numerous prestigious tournaments such as the Perrier Open (1988 and 1991). The course has seen many golf legends, including Arnaud Massy, Byron Nelson, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Severiano Ballesteros, Fred Couples, and Tiger Woods during the 1994 Amateur World Championship.

Now a legendary course, La Vallée is not very long but is quite technical. Its narrow fairways, lined with trees of various species, along with steep slopes and numerous undulations, represent the main challenge of the course. The terrain is never flat! The large, deep greens allow for multiple pin positions, ranging from simple to very challenging. They are protected by many deep bunkers, requiring precise short game skills.

The course record of 61 is still held by Severiano Ballesteros, set in 1986 during the Pro-Am of the French Open.
